It all dates back to the 70s when the young Piero Figus, just become of age, decided to start his own business, buying the first Volkswagen Bus which would have driven children to school during the week and teenagers to clubs in the weekend.

This was just the beginning of a company that, after 50 years, still operates and “move people” with passion and professionalism, becoming a reference point for Turin and its surroundings first and for Milan too until it became one of the leader companies for the international tourism in Italy.

Since the beginning, the company tourist vocation is well clear. In the 80s the fleet counted already several Gran Turismo coaches serving important agencies operating national and international travels.

At the end of the 90s, the founder’s son Fabio, graduated in Business Economics, entered the management and the company started to hit the market at an international scale making business with the most important global operators of the travel field and to operate an extended range of long distance circuits in Europe. In order to excel in such a competitive market, the management has always focused on innovating the fleet, training his staff and developing new and up to date technologies.

In the 2011 the company set a new branch in Milan with the aim to extend its offer of services also in this strategic area. In the same year Linea Azzurra had been chosen to be the Italian representative partner from the well known and prestigious “Global Passenger Network”, global organisation currently operating over 45 different countries all around the world an in continuous expansion. The network connects the best operators in the market by selecting only one company in each state able to provide services all over its territory complying with high quality and safety standards as well as the environmental regulations.

The company mission is as clear as its ethic code is which can be summarized: provide a service of high quality and safety standards base on its own possibilities, in order to guarantee cheapness both financially and environmentally speaking.
The company internal structure, although it keeps its light family reality made of a few but valid professionals, follows the model of the global main tour operators in the market.

Their psychophysical ability is (as per law) checked every month. Their performance is evaluated by steadily verifying the Client’s satisfaction but also by using modern telematic systems installed onboard which evaluate the driving quality and efficiency with the aim to optimize the costs and the environmental impact. These systems can emerge into prizes and incentives for the most deserving drivers.

This system allows our offices to monitor in real time all our transports and activities so that we can also check that legal duty and resting hours are fully respected as per regulations (CE 561/2006), and we can promptly act whenever the compliance is violated. Additionally, the system allows us to monitor our drivers’ driving, improving their performance with trainings if needed.

Moreover, with the development of the fleet, we are supplying the vehicles with latest device entertainment systems such as WIFI, TV etc.

The improvement of the system has permitted the adjustment of our administrative systems with the most modern and efficient models and as result the company experienced a rationalisation of the exercise, accurate administration of procedures and functions, spotting and resolution of the noncompliances.

The careful attention to details, typical for an artisan business, is still part of the company despite the actual bigger size, thanks to the formalisation of certain procedures.

This system is combined with the maintenance which is then well coordinated and carefully planned. The ordinary maintenance usually takes place in our workshop in Moncalieri with our experiences mechanics and registered in the administrative system in order to foresee any additional operations hence decrease potential issues on the road.

Moreover this administrative system allows us to meet the deadlines and to arrange without any delays special or seasonal equipment (winter tyres, snow chains, safety systems, etc.).

The Fleet & Crew Supervisor checks the efficiency by constantly collecting information from the crew on the road and reports to the Maintenance Supervisor and the Operations. Additionally we have an internal staff in charge of the daily cleaning and purification of the vehicles and equipment in order to always protect our clients health.
